

Triumph Over Treachery

Holy Bible Scripture Focus: Psalm 35

Written: Tuesday, March 06, 2012

Time: 5:58 a.m.

Place written: Florida

Written by: piercegrace

*I walked about as though it were my friend or my brother,
I was bowed with gloom, like one mourning for his mother.
But when I stumbled, they gleefully gather,
Wretches against me in unison chatter.
I know not why they tear at me without end,
Impious, making grimaces and gnashing their teeth at me, I thought they were my friend.
O LORD, rescue me from their attacks,
My precious life, from the lions at my back.
Let not my treacherous enemies over me rejoice,
You LORD silence their open-wide-mouths giving them no voice.
Those who hate me without reason, their eyes wink,
They say, "Aha, just what we wish!" is what they think.
Devising fraudulent schemes against harmless folk,
They do not offer amity, instead use innocent people for a harmful joke.
You have seen it, O LORD; do not hold aloof!
O LORD, be not far from me for You see the ungodly proof.
Wake, rouse Yourself LORD for my cause and my claim,
May those who vaunt themselves over me be clad in frustration and shame.
Individuals happy at my misfortune be frustrated with utterly disgrace,
The LORD GOD YAHWEH ALMIGHTY will not hear the wicked and not allow them to see His face.
However, sing forth joyously those who desire my vindication,
Acclaim You LORD in a mighty throng and righteous celebration.
"Extolled be the LORD who desires the well-being of His servant," may they always say,
While my tongue shall recite Your beneficent acts with praise all long the day.*